

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for the direct estimation of configuration parameters defining the make-up of a physical system, such as cable lengths and gauges in the case of telephone subscriber loops, from boundary or end-point measurements of the physical structure, such as the impedance or return loss response of a subscriber loop, due to a probing source.

00000000000000000000000000000000